The greatest question since the world be-

two human lives.
One, a drawing-room belle who had known only pleasure and wealth.
One, a rough son of the plains who had

Plan To Eliminate Low Places In Prairie Road In Pike County

According to a bulletin received by the Portsmouth Automobile Club Monday from the State Good Roads organization, a contract will be let June 30 for the improving of 203 of a mile of the Portsmouth-Columbus highway or Scioto Trail, this strip being between Piketon and Waverly. The improvement which is to be of reinforced concrete will cost about $23,773.32. This short section of improvement will connect up the concrete section put down last year with the improved gravel road. The improvement means the eliminating of the two low places in the road that are always covered with water by the overflowing of the Scioto river just north of Piketon. Two culverts will be built probably at the low places in the road.

Fined $500 On Possession Charge

Walter Hughes, 40 years old, 837
Mill street, was fined $500 and costs
by Squire George S. Morgan Monday under his plea of guilty of possessing liquor unlawfully. In default of funds to pay up the defendant was remanded to jail.

The charge against Hughes followed on the heels of a visit Sunday night by county officers to his Mill street home, which resulted, according to the officers, of the finding of a quantity of moonshine liquor there.

Hughes is in poor health and his wife told the officers that his present physical condition was due to the excessive use of moonshine liquor during the past year. She stated that for the past several months Hughes had been almost constantly under the influence of liquor and she declared during that period he had worked but very little to support her and their minor children.

To Continue American Occupation Of Haiti But To Cut Marine Force

WASHINGTON, June 26—(By the Associated Press)—Indefinite continuance of American military occupation of Haiti, but with a reduction of the marine force, was recommended in a unanimous report today by the special senate committee which for months has been investigating American administration in Haiti and Santo Domingo.

The committee deferred announcement of its findings on Dominican affairs in view of the negotiations happily begun between the state department and the Dominican leaders looking to the termination of military government in Santo Domingo.

The declaration that early withdrawal of drastic regulation in the American marine occupation force in Haiti would be followed certainly by brigandage and revolution was made in the report signed by Senator Mc-Cormick, Republican, Illinois, chairman, and Senators Oddie, Republican, Ohio, and Jones, Democrat, New Mexico, who have held protracted hearings and recently toured Haiti and Santo Domingo.

The committee found that on the whole American administration in Haiti had been of great benefit to the Haitians as was so regarded, it said, by a vast majority. The American record, however, was described as one both of failure and achievement," the report stated, adding that there had been some "blunders" and a few instances of cruelty against natives, by members of the military force.

High price was given the marines corps for its work in Haiti in the report, which dealt at length with charges of cruelty by marines and local gendarmerie, only a few of which were declared proven, while many charges were declared false and others based on hearsay testimony by illiterate natives.

Will Enjoy "Bicycle Hike"

On Friday afternoon of this week, the first Boy Scout bicycle hike will be taken. These hikes will be continued throughout the summer, and during the great bicycle trip to the Great Lakes. If you haven't heard about these trips, here is an explanation. We are taking these short trips every week in order to see who can ride a bicycle and at the same time save the "bike" and himself. These are the preliminaries to the big hike at the end of the summer. Every Scout who has or can get a bicycle, is wanted on all of these trips. We also expect to take made at easy stages. However, only over-night bicycle trips if the Scouts want to go. Cycling is to be the big thing this summer in the Scout organization, and no Scout will want to miss the fun. Sometime, near the middle of August, we expect to start on the much talked of "bike" trip to the Great Lakes. In charge of this trip will be Scoutmaster H. E. Butler, Assistant Scout Executive Hobstetter, and one or two others. The main purpose of this trip will be sight-seeing, fun, and a general good time. We will be gone two weeks or more and the entire hike will be these trips. We also expect to take made at easy stages. However, only Scouts who can prove their ability to ride will be allowed to go.

The trip this week will be Friday afternoon and we will start from the Gallia Street esplanade at one o'clock.

OUT OUR WAY

FIRE DESTROYS 2 AUTOS

Two automobiles were destroyed by fire Sunday, the first, a touring car, the property of Elmer Ruhlman, while the second was owned by Aaron Bobst of Waits Station.

The Ruhlman car was burned about 10:45 Sunday morning on Carey's Run. A man named Arthur Chapman called at the Ruhlman garage on Chillicothe street and after looking over the cars on hand asked if he could take one out for a trial spin. He was accompanied by O. P. Wolfe, a friend of Mr. Ruhlman, who readily consented, Chapman claiming he would buy the car if it proved satisfactory. About twenty minutes later Mr. Ruhlman received word that the machine was on fire on Carey's Run. He made a hurried trip there, but only found a pile of twisted steel and iron.

The men claimed they stopped to investigate why the floor of the machine was so hot and to see if a front tire was flat. On alighting from the car they discovered the fire which started near the engine. It is thought that a short circuit in the wiring caused the fire. It burned so rapidly that Chapman and Wolfe did not have time to grab their coats from the car. Mr. Ruhlman carried insurance on the machine.

Aaron Bobst of Waits Station owned a car at nine o'clock last night but at 9:45 he only had four tires and three wheels left. He was on his way home after bringing his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs.

found that the youth had suffered a fractured skull, but it is not thought that the boy will die as he later regained consciousness.

Explanation Is Made

To the Editors of the Times, Portsmouth, Ohio, Gentlemen:

I desire to correct an erroneous impression that might be inferred by reading your paper. Mrs. Lorraine Diller filed a complaint against me in the Municipal Court charging me with criminal slander. This case was set down for trial by Judge McCall. On the day that the case was to be tried Mrs. Diller did not appear to prosecute the case. In the meantime the police had placed a disorderly conduct charge against Mrs. Diller. On the day the case against me was set for trial the Court continued the same for want of prosecution and later my attorney called the attention of Judge McCall to my good reputation and character in the community and asked that the alleged slander case against me either be set down for trial or be dismissed.

Thereupon after investigation on the part of Judge McCall the case against me was dismissed. I desire to say now that I never have in any way, manner or form slandered Mrs. Diller. I only know Mrs. Diller as she would sometimes trade at my store. As for Mrs. Diller moving out of our community I had nothing to do with that.

Yours truly,
LILLIE VEACH

Wellston Wins Sunday Game

WELLSTON, O., June 26.—The much rated Capital City Realty Club of Columbus met defeat at the hands of the Wellston American Legion nine here Sunday afternoon by a score of 9 to 2. Columbus scored two in the opening from on three singles and a passed ball. They annexed another single in the second and then Patton settled down and did not allow another hit. Wellston had their inning in the 5th when hits and errors by the visitors allowed 8 tallies to cross the rubber.

The New Boston Red Sox were supposed to play here but after booking them and being advertised for a week they went to Chillicothe because, it is claimed, they received better inducements than were offered here. Yesterday's score:

Sun Seeks To Recapture Canton

PEKING, June 24.—(By the Associated Press)—While advances from Amoy indicated that troops of Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of the Canton republic, were pushing toward Canton in an effort to recapture that city, other reports stated that these forces were scattered about Kiangsi province disorganized, looting the territory. Official opinion in Peking today was that any attempt to restore Sun's regime would fail.

The dispatches reaching Amoy were dated Saturday and said the army loyal Sun Yat Sen's had split in two sections, turned southward and was heading down on the headquarters of Chen Ching Ming, whose army captured Canton. Chen took the capital city of south China in behalf of the republican government at Peking and declared his readiness to support Wu Pei-Fu, the conqueror of the north, in an effort to reunite China.

The latest reports reaching Peking related that Sun was detained aboard a gun boat at Canton and that General Chen was in full control of the surrounding territory.

Republican leaders in the north continue to express confidence in the restoration of an all-China parliament. They predict that the discordant elements will be subdued under the military leadership of Wu Pei-Fu in the north and Chen in the south.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am a girl of 25 and have lived in the city all my life. I am a business girl and not very domestic. Dolly, I have a chance, to marry a farmer, who is pretty well fixed and I was wondering if I could be happy on a farm. I don't know a thing about pigs, cows and chickens, and I would not know a chum from a tractor. I never did care much for the country, but they tell me one will do lots of things for the man they love that you would not do otherwise. Dolly, do you think I would be happy if I married him? He has a silver and he says I can come to town whenever I want to. His farm is 15 miles out. Would you accept him or not?

BUSINESS GIRL.
Not me. I would not live in the country for love, nor money, but I do not want to discourage you. If you think you would rather operate a chum than a typewriter, go ahead and marry your farmer boy. Me for the bright lights and paved streets. It gives me the Jim-Jams to listen to the hoot owls howl, the screech owls screech, the turtle doves moan, the cuckoos sing, the katydids say, they didn't, the frogs croak and the toads and one other bugs and worms start on the general serenade just as soon as it begins to get dark. If you are going to be a farmer's wife, you might as well make up your mind that you are going to work and be satisfied. You will have to go to bed with the chickens and get up at daylight. You can't always get help on a farm, even if he is able to hire it. So there are a dozen and one things you will just have to do yourself. I don't want to discourage you, but I think you ought to know what you are getting into, and the man you are marrying ought to know whether or not you will be a burden or a help to him. Have a talk with him along these lines and then neither of you can say you got stung.

Dear Dolly—Please tell me how to decline an invitation to a dance. A friend has asked me, but I am putting him off until I know what to say to him. I do not dance, and of course can't very well accept the invitation.

BLUE EYES.
Thank the man, and tell him that you do not dance. That is all there is to it.

Dear Miss Wise—I would like for you to tell me how to clean white window blinds. Just the lower half seems to be soiled. MRS. X. Y. Z.
Window shades should be unrolled and stretched on a table to clean. Any good wall paper cleaner may be used. If the shade is badly faded, turn it end to end. Stitch a hem in the end that was attached to the roller and slip the rod through. Fasten the original hem end to the roller. Another good way to clean them is to go over them with a coat of good white flat paint. Do one side at a time and let dry thoroughly.

Dear Miss Dolly—I am a girl of 17-18, and don't you think I am old enough to have boy friends? I had a friend who left here about three months ago. He has written me several times. The last letter he wrote he said he was coming home and he would drop in to see me when I least expected him. As my parents do not allow me to have company I do not know what I am going to do about it. I am afraid they will chase him off and I do not know how to let him know this. What would you do about it? WORRIED GIRL.

You are old enough to have boy friends, but not "lovers." If your parents insist, however, upon your waiting until you are 18, do not rebel. Many girls do not have boy friends until they are that old. Do not anticipate trouble. When the boy comes your parents surely will not be rude to him. His call may make them realize that you are quite a young lady now and entitled to occasional callers. He will probably call you up when he arrives in the city, and then if your parents object you can give him that reason for not seeing him.

Dear Miss Dolly—Which is the proper way to cut a water melon, round and round or lengthwise? WANT-TO-KNOW.
The blossom end of either cantaloupe or water melon is sweeter than the stem end; therefore it is a good plan to cut them in half the long way.

Dear Dolly—There is a certain boy that I do not love very much, but he says he loves me. Every time I go out he wants to take me home. Myself and a girl friend who lives in the neighborhood go out to the shows at night. Do you think that is all right? If you don't answer my letter I shall be terribly disappointed. I am 14 years of age. VIOLET.
You should not go places at your age unless accompanied by an older person. It may seem hard to stay home from shows and other places, but it will be better for you. The young men and boys will not respect you so much as they would if you followed the very same convention of chaperonage at four age. It is absolutely unsafe for a girl of fourteen to go places at night alone. I am surprised that your mother doesn't tell you these things. You are at an age when you need sympathy, advice and above all watching.

A THIRD CORNER TO THE MALE TRIANGLE

The Tangle of Molly's Romance Becomes More Involved As Billy Barton Appears As The Third Suitor

—BY ZOE BECKLEY—

DON MANNING, handsome blond man of the Midvale stock company, asked

MOLLY WAYNE to marry him on the night of the dance at the Midvale Boat Club. Within twenty minutes after a breathless consent, Molly found herself tangled in a romantic maze. She knew that

BEN WHEELER, resolute and determined manufacturer, loved her, as did

BILLY BARTON, a youthful architect. Wheeler files into a temper on learning the news and vows that he will show Molly something concerning Manning.

As Molly sat where Wheeler had left her, pale and wondering what was behind his threat, Don Manning came up, his face dark with a frown.

"What's that hardware man been saying?"

"Nothing that need worry you, Don," Molly's voice was gentle but her expression not reassuring.

"Well, then, do come home," said Don nervously. "If we're to make that train—"

"Sorry, Don," she interrupted firmly, "but I've promised Billy Barton a dance—and to go home in his car."

"Good Lord, that was hours ago. Since then—"

"A promise is good for longer than that, Don. Here he comes now."

"What's that hardware man been saying?"

"Nothing that need worry you, Don," Molly's voice was gentle but her expression not reassuring.

"Well, then, do come home," said Don nervously. "If we're to make that train—"

"A promise is good for longer than that, Don. Here he comes now."

Billy Barton, a wholesome blond of youth and stability, sensibility and strength, good humor and quiet resolution, came up to them.

"Lo, Don," Hello, Molly—little late for our dance, but all the better for waiting—"

"Oh Billy," Molly apparently disregarded a look of appeal from Don Manning. "I'm so sorry. And to make it worse, I've got to go right home. I may have to—oh, Billy, I can't explain just now."

"Shucks! Life's too short for explanations. But you owe me that ride home, Molly. If I fetch my car will you come?"

She snatched at the suggestion. She could redeem her promise to Billy and at the same time gain the breathing space for thought she needed.

"Right!" sang Billy and hurried out.

SCRAMBLED TODAY
The salt taken as he held in his arms the body of his dearest friend, Philippe de Villombrin, sent Andre-Louis, moreau, young lawyer of Gavrilac, to Nantes and thence to Nantes where his fervid speeches roused to action the citizens who were chafing under the oppression of the nobility. Philippe had been tricked into a duel and brutally murdered because Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr feared the "dangerous gift of eloquence" which the idealistic divinity student possessed. Andre-Louis swore to carry on the cause of his friend and revenge himself on the Marquis for Philippe's death and because the profligate noble had used for the hand of the beautiful Alaine de Kercadiou, niece of Lord of Gavrilac, who was popularly believed to be the father of Andre-Louis. Returning from Nantes Andre-Louis is met on the outskirts of Gavrilac by Alaine, who warns him that soldiers are waiting in the town to arrest him for sedition. ON WITH THE STORY
"My dear Alaine! That I should have been the cause of so much concern and trouble!" exclaimed Andre with laughing melancholy. "Do you realize that they have come to arrest you?" she asked him, with increasing impatience. "You are wanted for sedition, and upon a warrant from M. de Landegueres." "Sedition?" quoth he, and his thoughts flew to that business at Nantes. It was impossible they could have had news of it in Nantes and acted upon it in so short a time. "Yes, sedition," the sedition of that wicked speech of yours at Nantes on Wednesday." "You must not go into Gavrilac," she told him, "and you must get down from your horse, and let me take it. I shall return it to the Breton Army." "You haven't considered what will happen to you, if you do such a thing."

BOOK 11: THE BUSKIN CHAPTER I COMING presently upon the Redon road, Andre-Louis, obeying instinct rather than reason turned his face to the south, and plodded wearily and mechanically forward. He had no clear idea of whether he was going, or of whether he should go. All that importuned at the moment was to put as great a distance as possible between Gavrilac and himself. Midway across the vast common to the north of Guignen he came to a halt. Beyond loomed a tall building which he knew to be an open barn, standing on the edge of a long stretch of meadowland. It was as big as a house, yet consisted of no more than a roof carried upon half a dozen tall, brick pillars. But densely packed under that roof was a great stack of hay that promised a warm couch on so cold a night. He cleared a tangle for his body, and lying down in it, covered himself to the neck with the hay he had removed. Within five minutes he was soundly asleep. When next he awakened, the sun was already high in the heavens. Then to his awakening senses came a drone of voices close at hand, to which at first he paid little heed. "Oh, mon Dieu, Leandre, let us separate at once. If it should be my father..." And upon this a man's voice broke in, calm and reassuring. "No, no, Climeuse, you are mistaken. There is no one coming. We are quite safe. Why do you start at shadows?" More was not needed to reassure Andre-Louis. He had overheard enough to know that this was but the case of a pair of lovers who, with heat of fear of life, were yet after the manner of their kind—more timid of heart than he. In the space of crooked meadow between the barn and the hedge stood a man and a woman, both young. The man was a well-set-up, comely fellow, with a fine head of chestnut hair and a queue by a broad bow of black satin. He was dressed with certain lawdery at-

"HE IS COMING! WE ARE LOST!"
"What do I care for law? Do you imagine that the law will presume to touch me?"
"Of course there is that. You are sheltered by one of the abuses I complained of at Rennes. I was forgetting."
"Complain of it as much as you please, but meanwhile profit by it. Come, Andre, do as I tell you. Get down from your horse." And then as he still hesitated, she stretched out and caught him by the arm. Her voice was vibrant with earnestness. "Andre, don't you realize how serious is your position. You must go away at once, and lie completely lost until my uncle can bring influence to bear to obtain your pardon."
"That will be a long time, then," said Andre-Louis. "M. de Kercadiou has never cultivated friends at court."
"There is M. de la Tour d'Azyr," she reminded him, to his astonishment. "That man!" he cried, and then he laughed. "Why yes, you see, I have not yet said that I will be Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr. It is a position that has its advantages. One of them is that it ensures a suitor's complete obedience." "So, so, I see the crooked logic of your mind. You might go so far as to say to him: 'Refuse me this, and I shall refuse to be your marquis.' You would go so far as that?" "At need, I might."
"And do you not see the converse implication? Do you not see that your hands would then be tied, that you would be wanting in honor if afterwards you refused him? And do you think that I would consent to anything that could so tie your hands? Do you think I want to see you damned, Alaine?" Her hand fell away from his arm. "Oh, you are mad!" she exclaimed, quite out of patience. "Possibly. But I like my madness. There is a thrill in it unknown to such sanity as yours. By your leave, Alaine, I think I will ride out to Gavrilac!" "Andre, you must not! It is death to you!" In her alarm she backed her horse, and pulled it across the road to bar his way. "Alaine, on one condition only." "And that?" "That you swear to me you will never seek the aid of M. de la Tour d'Azyr on my behalf." "Since you insist, and as time presses, I consent." Obediently he swung down from his horse, and surrendered the reins to her. She was gone, and he stood listening to the receding clatter of hoofs until it grew faint in the distance.

SHOULD RAILWAY WAGES BE CUT?

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has prepared a series of very interesting articles about the railroad industry, which affects the lives of two and a half million workers and ten million others dependent upon them. The Times will gladly print these articles and below will be found No. 1:

The U. S. Railway Labor Board, now sitting in Chicago, is hearing the spokesmen for the railroads and the various railway labor organizations to determine whether or not working rules should be changed and the wages of these employees further reduced below the 12.2 per cent cut which elapsed over $278,000,000 from the railway pay rolls last July.

The question is one of vital interest to the country. Not only the passenger and the shipper, but every citizen who consumes food, wears clothing or gets a letter through the mails has a personal concern in an efficient, dependable and economical transportation service.

The railroads contend that they will gladly reduce rates if they can take the difference out of the wages of their employees. They do not promise that this will insure greater efficiency. On the contrary, most of them frankly admit that it will not, since railroad wages are already at a point where many of the best men are leaving the service. The lawyers for the railroads are not stressing the deflation of the section men and unskilled maintenance-of-way employees, whose wages are only about $3 a day; but they assert that the higher paid railway employees, especially the engineers and train service men, should immediately suffer a substantial reduction in pay.

Wages of Best Paid Rail Labor Small

In order to secure for our readers the unvarnished truth about the actual wages received by the best paid railway employees, we have just made a survey of the compensation of locomotive engineers, who are sometimes referred to as "the aristocrats of labor," since they are among the most highly skilled and best paid railroad workers. Obviously, if a cut should not be made in the wages of these men, then the wages of the most poorly paid employees can not be further reduced.

In order to determine whether the engineers are now receiving more than their share of income, we have taken the authoritative figures on wages recently compiled by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board, the data collected by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the rule for determining a "just and reasonable wage" laid down in the Transportation Act passed by Congress in 1920 and still in force. According to the carefully compiled figures of the Railroad Labor Board, the average daily earnings of engineers are as follows:

Passenger engineers $6.00
Yard engineers 6.51
Through freight engineers 7.05
Local freight engineers 7.44

The Labor Board stresses the fact that these are average daily earnings, and include overtime as well as regular pay. They represent the total daily compensation received by the average engineer since July 1, 1921, when Decision No. 147 of the Labor Board imposed a 0.4 per cent cut, totaling $33,822,645 per annum on engine service employees. In the same report there is also given the average monthly wage received by engineers, which indicates that many of them do not work full time. In fact the highest average stated is but $185.93 per month, which works down to $110.56 for yard and local engineers. As a matter of fact, many engineers are now receiving less than this because the prevalent industrial depression has deprived them of steady employment to the point where they receive but a few days' work a week, often with an average income under $100 per month. This is far less than the dollar an hour standard compensation paid skilled artisans in practically all of the well organized trades. It is actually less than the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics claims that the average American family must have to maintain a decent standard of living! Rules for "Just and Reasonable Wages"

We believe that it is fair to ask the question: What are locomotive engineers' services worth to society? The Transportation Act lays down seven rules by which a "just and reasonable wage" shall be determined by the United States Railroad Labor Board. In brief, they are:

1. Wages paid for similar work in other industries.
2. Relation between wages and cost of living.
3. Hazards of employment.
4. Training and skill required.
5. Degree of responsibility.
6. Character and regularity of employment.
7. Inequalities of present wages or treatment, the result of previous wage adjustments.

Obviously, there is no similar work in other industries with which the labor of a locomotive engineer can be compared; nor should any skilled worker be held down to a mere subsistence based on the bare cost of living. What, then, are the hazards, the skill, and the responsibility exacted of engineers? We doubt if the public realizes the risks daily assumed by every engineer in active service. According to the mortality tables, based upon years of actuarial experience by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Insurance Department, the average duration of life of a railroad engineer is but 11 years and 7 days. No engineer knows when he steps into the engine cab whether through no fault of his, his life will be snuffed out before the end of the run. The safety appliances which railroad employees have secured only after prolonged struggle can reduce, but they cannot eliminate, the risks incurred by engine service employees.

Severe Tests Eliminate All But Few

The training, skill and physical perfection required of an engineer is such that the great majority of engine wipers, hostlers and firemen who spend years of labor preparing for the opportunity to grasp the throttle fall by the wayside in the thorough elimination of the less fit. Even after rejecting all who cannot measure up to the strictest tests for height, perfect vision, heart action, blood pressure, etc., seven per cent of the firemen who aspire to become engineers are rejected at the end of three years because their eyesight becomes impaired by the fierce glare of a grate of coals throwing off 2900 degrees of heat. An additional 76 per cent do not exhibit the temperament and natural ability required of an engineer, so that only 17 out of every 100 candidates ever win a place on the right side of the cab. Even after this rigorous process of the selection of the most fit, only six out of every 100 ever get places in passenger service. In brief, the length of training and the skill required to become a successful engineer is no less than that demanded of a competent artist or an able lawyer.

Engineer's Responsibility Exceeds Doctor's

It is an axiom of social justice that the payment received for any service should depend in part upon the responsibility involved. The skilled surgeon is certainly entitled to a greater compensation than the woman who naps up the hospital floors. In no other profession in the world, not even excepting the medical profession, is a man entrusted with greater responsibility for the lives of his fellow-men than is the engineer in the locomotive cab. How well he discharges this obligation is indicated by the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for 1921, which shows that fatalities on American railroads are less than for the past 22 years, 16,239,774 passengers being carried to one killed. Whenever a wreck does occur, it is the men who run the trains and not the passengers who usually pay the price. Indeed, the scrupulous carefulness of engine and train service employees is such that one important transportation line carrying 30,000,000 persons a year has not fatally injured one passenger in more than four years. There are 24 times as many people killed by automobiles in the United States, according to the 1920 census, as there are passengers killed on the railroads.

Careful Crossing Campaign Bearing Fruit

For the first fifteen days of June there was a decrease of 50 per cent in the number of automobiles involved in accidents at highway crossings on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as compared with the same fifteen days last year.

Since the Careful Crossing Campaign began June 1st last, on all the railroads of the country, under the auspices of the Safety Section, American Railway Association, the railroads have kept a close check on accidents and are reporting them to the Association. From the record made by the Baltimore and Ohio in these first 15 days of the campaign to "Cross Crossings Cautiously" it seems that automobilists are giving co-operation and are using greater precautions in going over the tracks. There have been several distressing crossing accidents in the past ten days, one of the worst being a case in Georgia, where a car with six tourists was struck and all of them killed.

BLACKHEADS are Embarrassing

Oh! how can I get rid of them and enjoy the glory of a clear skin?

Don't despair! S. S. S. will lead you into a world you probably have never known before—a world of joy, where strong light and love are welcome, where spotted, blotchy, blackheads, acne, rash, pimples, eruptions are bound to disappear.

Miss Ethel Kase, 412 E. Water St., Painted Post, N. Y. writes: "I was troubled with pimples on my face, neck and chest. I was advised to take S. S. S. I found it so claimed, as it certainly purified my system and my complexion is now clear."

Judge H. Clay Turley left for his home in Natchez, Miss., at the end of a pleasant visit with relatives here.

The manager of the culinary department at Lauby's saloon on Chillicothe street had cut the head off a large turtle. The head of the turtle, like the tail of a snake, it seems, does not die until the sun goes down. At all events this head was full of life. When the house cat came along and thought to have a special feast, the jaws of the turtle closed on the cat's nose with a death-like grip and the feline's yells could be heard for two squares. The jaws remained closed until assistance came and they were pried open.

The Lucasville sluggers beat the Norman University nine 10 to 8, at Athletic park, and which caused the fans in that little city to feel jubilant.

W. C. Gregg left for Honolulu in hope that the climate would benefit his health.

Jack Deneff returned to Sharpsburg, Pa., where he was chief of detectives. In former years he was a Portsmouth policeman.

While Thomas Coppock, one of the faithful Times carriers, was enjoying a vacation visiting with his mother and sister in the west, Floyd Fuller acted as substitute carrier on Route 7.

Cut the Cost of Production

Profit in dairying depends to a great extent on reducing the cost per gallon of producing milk. Cows on pasture slip down in milk flow. Experienced dairymen have found they can produce more milk at less cost per gallon, by feeding a little concentrate.

With Cow Chow you can cut the cost of production per gallon, you can put your cows in better condition and get a longer milking period.

Hundreds of dairymen are using Cow Chow to lower milk costs. Cow Chow contains just the right proteins to balance grass and to make it produce more milk.

Cow Chow will make your milk checks bigger and lower the cost of producing the milk per gallon.

Eighteen bodies of strikebreakers were lying in this temporary morgue in Herrin, Ill., when this photo was taken. Crowds visited the building throughout the day. The lower picture shows ruins of the strikebreakers' homes. They lived in cars that had been provided for them at the mines. Burning cars of coal that caught fire from the incendiary flames are shown at the left.

RIDGE IS SCENE OF BATTLE

Scene on one of the dumps at the Southern Illinois Coal Company mine near Herrin, where the mine war pitched battle was staged. The attackers were in the thickets at the right and on back towards the big road, while the defenders fired from the top of the ridge shown at the left. It was near the pole where the flag of truce was raised.

DYNAMITED SAFE AND RUINS

Above is what was left of the demolished offices of the Southern Illinois Coal Company, at the mine. After the fighting ceased the large safe shown in the foreground and said to have contained considerable money, was opened by dynamite and the office burned to its foundations.

BRITTON AND LEONARD CLASH TONIGHT IN TIT LE BOUT; BOTH BOXERS ARE IN PRIME CONDITION

Ring Wiseacres Are Picking
Leonard To Bring Home Bacon

NEW YORK, June 28—Jack Britton, veteran welterweight boxing champion, and Beauty Leonard, lightweight title holder, will meet tonight in a 15 round decision contest at the New York velodrome.

Britton's welterweight title will be at stake, but as Leonard will enter the ring several pounds over the lightweight limit, his championship will not be risked.

The lightweight king is ten years younger than Britton and the latter has two inches advantage in height, but otherwise there is little difference in physical measurements.

Both boxers pronounced themselves fit and confident for the battle. Britton's followers were confident that the veteran's ring craft would return him a victor on points, while Leonard enthusiasts predicted the lightweight champion would stop his rival.

The pair have met twice before in no-decision contests, once in New York in 1917 over the 10 round route and the other a 6 round go at Philadelphia in 1918.

LIFTING PASSPORT LID

If the reported changes in passport practices have carried back to the simplicity common before the war, Americans who are going abroad will have some reason for congratulating the federal authorities in the belated return to normalcy. Papers issued now by the state department are solely for identification of the holder and for his individual convenience. Travelers need no longer make a carefully prepared statement of their reasons for visiting any country, and the purpose may be given in the most general terms without disclosing actual intentions, if desired, as in the days before the war period.

Passports will be issued, if desired, for even those countries in which we have no diplomatic representatives, but this, with the full understanding that the American travelers enter such territory entirely at their own risk and without claim to protection upon the United States government. No requirements are now laid down for those intending to go abroad, and all who have held passports since January 3, 1918, need no further proofs of identification to secure a new paper. The time may come again when an American may go where he will without the formality of a passport.

THE BROAD-BACKED TARIFF

THE protective tariff has been charged with many misdeeds in its day, but not until now has it been subjected to the charge of having produced the flapper and the fashions in feminine dress that have been in vogue in the last few years. If the tariff is to blame for these, a large part of the country will be disposed to say: "Give us free trade, right away."

There was agreement as to the tariff being responsible for the fashions when the subject came up in the senate over the discussion of the ferromanganese item. But the trouble about knowing what to do about it, so far as abolishing or maintaining the tariff is concerned, is that the two sides of the chamber differed as to just how the workings of the protective principle brought things to pass. The democratic view is that the high cost of living caused by the tariff makes it impossible for the women to afford costumes larger than a handkerchief, while Chairman McCumber contends that prosperity fostered by protection has marked the differences between the days when grandma had one bombazine dress to the days when feminine beauty and color in radiant variety entrance those who watch the recessional from church on a modern Sunday—or from the movie houses, he might have added.

Shall the country go back to the days of grandma, or shall the flapper be preserved? The fate of the tariff bill hangs on the answer.

AS ETERNAL AS THE HILLS

THERE is a class of alleged scholars and philosophers, which loves to deride the simple faith and devout practices of other ages, as the outbreak of ignorance and superstition.

One age is much like another. If some progress be made in one direction there is a slipping back in another. Human nature is unchangeable. It holds the same loves and the same hates, the same virtues and the same frailties, the same faith and the same superstition. Sometimes the races may seem better, sometimes worse, but it moves as the ebb tide of the seas and knows only slightly of increase or decrease.

Cram the popular mind with all the material knowledge books may hold and essentially it still turns instinctively to the mysterious and superstitious. Men still hunt for oil and gold with divining rods and just at this moment there are five expeditions, fitting out at New York to go to as many remote parts of the earth in search of hidden treasures, hundreds of thousands of dollars being squandered on nothing more substantial than the weird tales told on the fo'castle, even before the buccancer roved and pillaged.

God set the rainbow in the skies as remembrance of His promise that the world would not be again destroyed by flood. When men forgot him they got the ridiculous delusion that there was a pot of gold at the end of the bow. They believe so now and they will always so believe.

THE ONE THING NEEDED

A unique gathering centered at Columbus, Thursday, to promote the candidacy of Vic Donahey for the Democratic nomination for governor.

There was personal representation from about six-sevenths of the counties and the absent ones sent godspeed by telegram and letter.

As has grown altogether the custom these days the candidate gave out thereat his platform. It has ten points, the one of chief moment being that, in Vic's words, "the planks are not to get in on, but to stand on 100 percent when he is in office." Four of the others are sufficient in themselves, the reduction of taxes, the abolition of every unnecessary bureau and of every useless job, no orders from boss or machine and an old-fashioned housecleaning.

Every other candidate will subscribe to these same things heartily and readily, but there is this difference: Perhaps sincerely for the time being, but Vic Donahey means for the hereafter, for actual observance.

Taxes are getting to be a monstrous burden. They take new forms and mount higher every year. There are a million automobiles in Ohio. Five years ago there were not half that number, yet the taxes on automobiles have been doubled in that time. The appraised valuation of property has increased a half billion in the same period, but the present administration, which promised economy and retrenchment has materially increased the tax rate. Can it be truthfully said that government has brought any compensating gain to the sweating tax-payer?

Bureaus and jobs have multiplied and increased, every manipulation of legislation has been for party and for person and not for the people.

Ohio needs a good old fashioned housecleaning and she had better set herself about it before it is everlastingly too late.

THE BIBLE IN PICTURES AND TEXT

By HELEN E. O'BRIEN-SCHALL

THE TRESPASS OF ACHAN

THREE thousand men of Israel went into the city of Ai. The men of Ai slew thirty-six and the people fled. Joshua was disheartened and prayed. God said Israel had sinned and told Joshua Achan was the man who had sinned. Joshua asked him to confess. Achan said he had taken a beautiful garment and silver and gold from the spoils at Jericho and had hidden them in his tent. The people stoned Achan and burned all he had, then raised over him a heap of stones. And the Lord's anger was appeased.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 25.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys. Early up and resolved to go through exercises but lost rest therefor and flung myself on the bed and napped again. And late to the train to see H. Webster, the humorist, and Ethel off for California but waved farewell through the gates. Charles Norris, the novelist, on the train too in the gayest of all his gay silts.

Walked to a laundry and had high words about the loss of my shirt and in such agitation slipped and fell to the floor, thereby spoiling the dignity of my brave speech. Back home and at my stilt and in gay spirits too, my wife complimenting me on my drollery.

Took lunch with Eddie Rickenbacker and Steve Baughman, who were ready to hop off on a 15,000 mile journey through the air, and I more nervous than they at the thought. Nor could I join their quipping and quirk-bug. To a variety hall with my cousins Josephine and Lucy Virginia, the fairest, prettiest girls I know with their bobbed heads and summery frocks.

Dined in my chambers and came R. Long, V. Porter and J. Kaufman, the latter to say good-bye against going to Europe. Much rag, tag and bobtail and then to the train sheds again to take coach to Kansas City to see my father and sister.

Edward W. Dunn, Broadway flaneur and boulevardier, who is known from Columbus Circle to Herald Square for the magnificence of his waistcoats, is the author of a play that is to be produced in the fall. Dunn has been George M. Cohan's main Friday since that impresario waved his first flag. He is now going to cash in on his ripe experiences.

Nothing is ever considered unusual in New York, at least the New Yorker likes to affect utter boredom at everything. For instance there is a huge brass sign off Fifth Avenue in one of the Fifties which reads: "Dr. J. T. Blank—Tree Surgeon."

People hurry past the sign without reading. The sign is in a private house with magnificent French windows and an opyx entrance that must have cost many thousands. There is a waiting room and a secretary in a frock coat.

The doctor renders his surgical skill on the estates of millionaires in Westchester and Long Island and he said to charge $150 merely for consultation. Heaven knows what the charge if he decides to snip off a limb.

There are three chorus girls in Broadway musical productions who have one glass eye each. It is impossible to distinguish the slight deformity through the glare of the foot-lights.

These torrid nights are almost insufferable in the slums. Dawn in Halsted street, where families sleep "And this," said the chief of detectives, who was doing the honors to a party of feminine investigators, "is our finger print department."

"Dear me!" exclaimed one motherly looking woman who seemed a little out of place. "Where are the children?"

"The children, ma'am."

"Yes—to make the finger prints."

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You invariably rise to accept an introduction, either to a man or to a woman, if you are the hostess.

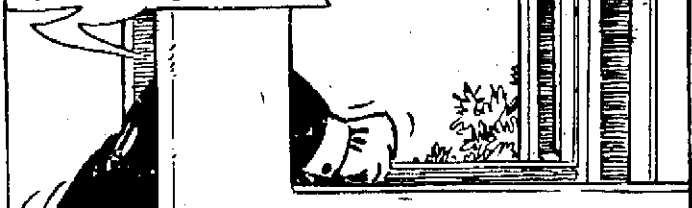

Otherwise, a woman does not rise when a man is presented, or when he is one of a group to which a woman is introduced, unless the person is somewhat older, or is distinguished.

A man, of course, always stands when any introduction in which he has a part takes place.
